The Man in the White House

WHEREVER FREE AND INformed men gather today there is anxiety over the health of President Eisenhower.

There is almost no limit to the consequences which could arise from his illness. They will be reflected in disputes on constitutional issues in the United States. They will influence economic and political the prospects for next month's NATO meeting in Paris.

But over-riding all such considerations will be a deep personal concern for the patient who lies in the White House. From all corners of the world prayers and hopes rise for the restored health of a man of courage, character and warm human

Paying for Pensions

Two LIBERAL SENATORS have recently talked more sense about old-age pensions than the House of Commons usually dares to

The opposition leader in the Senate, W. Ross Macdonald, and Senator Thomas Reid, of British Columbia, rightly observe that the whole pension system rests on the flimsiest kind of financial foundation. In an actuarial sense it has no foundation at all.

Theoretically the nation's huge pension bill is supposed to be financed by special taxes of 2 per cent on personal income, on corporations and on merchandise sales. The money thus raised goes into a separate,

But the fund is frequently in deficit. It was barely large enough to provide the $40 pension prevailing early this year. It will fall short of providing the new pension of $55 a month, especially at a time when the yield from all taxes is tending to fall.

This does not mean, of course, that the pension bill cannot be met pensioner will fail to get that any the monthly cheque. All the deficits of the pension fund are made up from the general revenues of the Government. The whole scheme is underwritten by the long purse of the state.

state, however, does not know and cannot know exactly what bill it will have to foot a few years That will depend on the growth and age of our population as affected by immigration of an unknown volume.

If those figures can be guessed approximately, the state does not know in advance how the bill is to be paid for that will depend upon general level of federal revenues that depends, in turn, on changing tax rates and changing yields as business fluctuates.

It would be much better, as

Senators Macdonald and Reid say, if the whole pension system were made to stand actuarially on its own feet-if, in short, we systematically set aside enough money every year cover all pension costs. The best way to do this, the nators say, is to let every citizen contribute enough money annually, during his working life, to provide the pension he will receive on retire-In other words, the senators would put the national pension scheme on the same sound basis as private schemes prevailing in most business organizations. citizen, together with his employer, would buy his pension through monthly instalments.

This would be sound in finance, and even sounder in politics. For at present, as Senator Reid says, the whole pension structure is con-tinually at the mercy of political manoeuvre. "All the present system is doing," says Senator Reid, "is causing one political party to bid against another.'

No one can deny that. The oldpension was the chief political football of the last election. The Conservatives outbid the Liberals and made a good thing of it politically. There will be nothing to prevent the Liberals, some other time, outbidding the Conservatives. And in Canada today there are enough old-age pensioners, influenced by this bidding, to swing any election. Most people will agree that the old-age pension should be as large as we can afford to make it but that decision should not be made at the poker game of an election with no regard to anything but votes. It should be made in relation to our ability to finance the cost.

By a contributory method, in place of the present ramshackle fiction, we would make sure that the necessary money was constantly set aside for future use.

Really, Mr. Fulton!

IT WOULD SAVE A DEAL OF confusion if Mr. Diefenbaker and his minister of justice, Mr. Fulton, would take the same general view of the nation's problems.

Mr. Diefenbaker has been telling us frequently of late that the eco-nomic situation in Canada is nothing to be alarmed about. Those who say we face any trouble of consequence are, he says, beneath his

But in Vancouver the other day Mr. Fulton took a much darker view. It would be folly, he said, to minithe unemployment though he did not see things as "disastrous." Who did?

Mr. Diefenbaker is congratulating his government and the nation on an orderly economic readjustment which, if it is such, results from the policies of the former Government.

Mr: Fulton, on the contrary, denounces the former Government for creating widespread unemployment by its tight-money policy. The present Government, he adds, is repairing this folly by loosening money (though not much so far). this folly by loosening while delivering these dicta, was busy in Vancouver trying to keep the Britannia copper mines open. Would he try to tell us that the fall in the world price of copper and ence the non-competitive costs of ne Britannia mines resulted from the Canadian Government's tight-money policy? Did a rise in Canadian interest rates reduce the price of copper all over the world?

It happened that Mr. Fulton,

Did it reduce the world price of other metals and thus damage employment in many other British Columbia mines? Did it soften the aluminum market?

More important to this province, did any policy of any Canadian Government reduce the world price of timber products and raise our cost of producing them until our great timber industry suffered a

Did tight money put some 6,000 pulp and paper workers out of their

Mr. Fulton is an honest and an able man. His recent distortion and double-talk should be beneath him. Before he makes any more economic pronouncements perhaps he should clear them with Mr. Diefenbaker.

To Develop Better Brains

THE UNITED STATES IS PLACing its hopes on education to strengthen its position in the world of science. So is Canada.

But our neighbors are moving faster than this country in drafting their plans.

In both nations leaders speak vigorously of the need to assist universities, high schools and even elementary schools.

The Canadian Government, under the Liberal administration, set up a substantial fund to aid universities. Mr. Diefenbaker has, followed with the announcement of plans to in-crease the development of trained brains. He proposes the creation of a scholarship system which would not be limited to those specializing in

The United States is studying similar and broader schemes to en-courage higher education. A major federal aid-to-education bill is being prepared to emphasize and assist natural science training in high schools and colleges

Proposals have been advanced to income-tax relief for parents of college students. A student loan fund is under consideration, as is a means of promoting more organized recruiting of teachers. Higher faculty salaries are also advocated.

One specific proposal by the head President Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee would provide federal government scholarships for students especially qualified in mathematics — a 3500 dward for every high school senior passing a federal test in that subject.

These are suggestions which could very well attract the interest of Canadian authorities. They appear to do no violence to the British North America Act which places control of education in the hands of the provinces but does not prohibit federal

Health in Powdered Form

KNOW of no scientific connection between flu and fluoridation, except that catching the former prevents you from writing about the latter. For this reason there has been a delay of some days a delay of some days between an earlier column on fluoridation in Kelowna and the present piece, which is intended to explain further how that pretty little Okanagan city ved its water

What I am about to say now will come as a terrible shock to those well-intentioned folk who insist that fluoridation of Victoria's water supply would ruin it and sicken us all. Victoria's water supply is already fluoridated, and always has been!

Who did it? The Communists? The sly aluminum trust bosses seeking to poison us for their own profit? No, just Nature, sprinkling her bounty around in haphazard way.

Lots of places Nature supplies with just the right amount of fluoride salts to benefit human teeth - that's in the proportion of one part per mi Other places she gives too much, inhabitants' teeth show a mottled discoloration. And in a great many places she is a bit niggardly—she gives a little fluoride but not quite enough to do any

More Needed

Victoria is such a place. Our water supply contains .1 part per million of fluoride salts. That's just a tenth of what we should have for improvement of our children's tooth enamel, and some day soon the people of this area no doubt will be called on to vote that the missing portion, about .9 parts per million, be made up at the cost of a few cents each

Well, Kelowna found itself in much the same situation. The water from Okanagan Lake contained .15 parts per million of fluoride, about one-sixth what was required for tooth health. On the advice of both local and national dental and medical authorities, Kelowna decided to add the missing proportion of salts and reap the benefit.

They were planning to install a new intake and pump-house anyway, so they included a fluoride mixing machine in their plans.

One of the anti-fluoridation arguents is that human error or faulty echanism might result in a lethal dose of fluoride being dumped into the water The simple machine used by shows how impossible this

A 100-pound sack of sodium silico-A 100-pound sack of sodium silico-fluoride—a pure white powder—is poured into a hopper from which, through the action of the water moving through the intake pipe, a worm gear releases a sprinkling of powder into a mixing vat at regular intervals. A sackful lasts about a week.

when the water is running Only through the main can the powder be released. But even if the whole machine exploded into little pieces, the most fluoride that could be released at time would be what was left of the 100 und sack. What effect would this amount have if it were spilled into the water supply in one fell swoop? Well, the Kelowna reservoir holds two and a half million gallons. The authorities estimate that you would have to dump 10 tons of fluoride into the water at one time to raise the concentration to int where it could prove poisonous. This also disposes of the other anti-fluoridationist argument — that Communists could dump fluoride into reservoirs and poison the whole population at will.

Wasted Efforts

Kelowna residents laughed at the thought of Communist agents struggling up the mountain to the reservoir with couple of box-car loads of fluorideit would take that much to poison the water—when a pint bottle of disease germs would do the job much better.

The Kelowna fluoridation plant has been running for a year now. Nobody has complained, nobody has got sick. Dentists, who made a study of Kelowna children's teeth before fluoridation began. are now completing a "one year later" study for comparison.

They point out, of course, that a year

They point out, or course, that a year is hardly long enough to show any real results. A good dear of the benefit of fluoridation comes when teeth are still being formed in the gum; it is then that get their legacy of hard enamel that protect them for many years.

But dentists who work at Kelowna's school clinics say that already there is a noticeable decrease in the amount of decay they encounter. They're convinced that spectacular results will soon be evident, as they have been in other Canadian cities that have treated their water supply. Small Investment

The cost of fluoride powder for the first year worked out at 17 cents perperson. A new supply of better powder now available is expected to bring this down to nine cents for the future.

That doesn't seem much to cut tooth decay by about two-thirds in the growing generation, and start a whole new era er mouths for humanity.

I like the way the Kelowna authorities handled the whole question. They rejected the idea that fluoridation was matter only for the experts. It was a matter for expert advice, of course, and that advice was brought before the people in an educational campaign. But the mayor and council wanted to do things in the democratic way. They put the question to a public vote and

I hope that is the way Victoria will I nope that is the way Victoria will do it when the time comes. And I hope that, like Kelowna, we will listen to the advice of our doctors and dentists, rather than to the folk who insist that the doctors and dentists doubt become doctors and dentists don't know what they are talking about.

It would be refreshing indeed if you would interview some one who knows the anti-fluoridation story and publish facts that invite the most searching investigation. I use the word "spurious" advisedly

Mr. Tobin has put a high editorial gloss on the case for fluoridation. As an editor he has an overwhelming advantage over such a one as myself who has no qualifications even as a student journalist. But as for facts, I claim the superiority, and so I ask for space to debate the merits of this controversial subject, and will confine myself to excerpts from journals noted for factual reporting and statements of scientists recognized as among the foremost in the medical profession who have proved every angle of fluoridation to the quick-doctors who are independent of any comdoctors who are independent of any com-mercial interest or Public Health Service, therefore with no axe to grind.

Following the line of our local Union

The story goes back to the months mediately after President Eisenhow er's first inauguration. In those months, the President and his chief subordinates were suddenly and brutally exposed to the accumulating evidence that the So-viets were threatening to surpass the United States in air-atomic power, which had previously been an American mo-

The President's first instinctive reac tion was that the American people ought to be apprised of the danger, so that united country could prepare to deal with it. On the President's instructions, a plan known as "Operation Candor" was prepared.

Later, Cutler himself wrote smugly

Korea Issue Unsolved

NEW YORK-The latest United Nations debate on Korea ended without progress and without bringing a solution any nearer.

It could be allowed to pass without comment here, for the debate attracted almost no attention. That is exactly what the Russians want—for at the outset of the debate, they described the Korean question as something that could well be put in the archives of the United Nations.

The fact, of course, is that we fought over

Korea not so very long ago, and a lot of people got killed in the process. Anything worth fighting over the ould seem to be worth writing about now—and if the Russians favor putting it in the archives, that would seem to be reason enough to take at least a passing glance at it. The Russians could blow up a crisis in Korea any

Lynch time they feel like it-just as, only a few days ago, they blew up a crisis in the Middle East, between Syria and Turkey. Korea remains an item in the Soviet box of tricks, and we would do well to keep it in mind, and to understand the present situation there. Russia is content for the moment to have two Koreas, North and South. She won't consent to the admission of South Korea to the United Nations unless North Korea comes in too. But the great majority of the nations here at the UN are committed to the proposition of unity between the two parts of Korea—and the South Koreans won't support any policy that isn't based upon unification

FREE ELECTIONS

What the South Koreans and most of the nations here at the UN want is to see free elections held in Korea, North and Southelections to be supervised by the United Na-tions. All the machinery for UN supervision is there—but the Russians, and of course the Chinese Communist regime, won't let it work.

So we have a stalemate—the same stalemate that has existed since the hostilities in Korea were halted. Not an inch of progress has been made, nor will there be any made until the Communists are ready for it. What the Russians said, in effect, in the latest debate was that there will never be free elec-

The resolution that was passed here on the Korean question was summed up by Mr. Krishna Menon of India as one that reaffirms a resolution taken in 1954, which was reaf-firmed in 1955 and again in 1956.

The resolution repeats the objective of a unified Korea, calls upon the Communists to accept that objective, and requests the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabili-tation of Korea to continue its work. It ex-presses the Western view, and the Republic of Korea view, that there is only one Korean people, with one history and one heritage. It reiterates the view that if the Korean people in both parts of the country were in a position to vote freely, they would unify their country and enable it to take its place in the community of nations. And, it is a reminder that the United Nations has great and special responsibilities toward the Korean people.

The representative of Australia, Mr. W. D.
Forsyth, said in the debate on Korea that the United Nations cannot and dare not sweep freedom under the carpets of this headquarters, large as some of them are. And he went on to say that the free world must never allow itself to be worn down, never acquiesce in the prevailing of force and injustice, and never concede to the Communists the fruits of aggression.

BACK ON SHELF

The debate on Korea lasted four days, and the subject now goes back on the shelf until the next session. But it stands as a reminder of many things—for instance, that Korea is the main stumbling block to the admission of Communist China here at the UN. That is one reason why the Russians want it forgot ten, and it's one reason why the United States wants it remembered.

It was the Chinese Communist in Korea, and the fact that so many soldiers died there, that set the attitude of the United States so firmly against recognition of the Communist Chinese, and their admission here. That attitude is unlikely to change as long as the Korean problem remains unsolved.

rean problem remains unsolved.

U.S. delegate Walter Judd quoted in this week's debate the Assembly resolution find-ing that Communist China committed an ag-gression against the Republic of Korea, and against the United Nations itself. The United states, he said, would repeat that charge as often as necessary, until the Communists agree to a United Nations solution—one that the UN has been struggling to achieve for ten years, the unification of Korea, Informants said that though the Russians have said at the United Nations they will not participate in deliberations of the UN disarmament commis sion as now constituted, the So-viets have told some commission members privately that they may well be prepared to resume disarmament negotia-tions in four or five months.

However, the Russians apparently want to conduct negotia-tions exclusively with the United States, the world's other major nuclear power, and may go over the head of the UN commission if they can reach agreement with the U.S.

Sources here stressed that the understanding given by the Russians privately at the UN regarding resumed disarma-ment negotiations could be countermanded by Moscow.

At the same time, however, appeared new hope here East West disarmament talks, stalled since last summer, may be resumed next year.

BILATERAL TALKS There is a growing body of pinion here that chances of a disarmament agreement might be improved by bilateral nego-tiations between the U.S. and Russia.

It is not known whether this is the Canadian government's view. Britain and France likely would object to being excluded from disarmament negotiations. Disarmament talks have been conducted in the main by the UN disarmament subcommittee, comprising the U.S., Britain, France, Canada and Russia. Canada has made it clear it is willing to quit the subcommittee if this would aid negotiations.

One view here is that the Russians may be behind the U.S. in the testing of small tactical atomic weapons and want to conduct more tests before re-suming disarmament negotia-

The West has insisted since 1946 that any disarmament agreement must include provision for inspection to make sure that the agreement is lived up to. By postponing negotia-tions, the Russians would avoid inspection until the tests were

6 Birtoria Baily Times 'STRONG, BUT NO RARITY' WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27, 1957

The seats of the mighty have saddy depreciated at City Hall.

If Victoria gets its planned new municipal offices, a comfortable, leather-backed armchair should be installed for the mayor.

The chair he has now, to preside over council debates, hardly dees credit to his office, according to a leading Victoria an itique dealer.

The mayor's chair looks fine. The mayor's chair looks fine. It is of carved oak, high-backed, and promised to supply the red-plushed and strong. It is story behind them. But he went flanked by two smaller chairs abroad and no one ever learned in my shop. They are of a type in the plush of these companion chairs what a story could yet evolve, an asked to look at the chairs.

The chair to the left of the known.

The chair to the left of the mayor is surmounted with them. They are good strong chairs, but rarities they are not."

So there was no story. Except that a story could yet evolve, an antique dealer, who must ethically remain anonymous, was asked to look at the chairs.

The mayor's chair looks fine.

It is of carved oak, high-backed, and promised to supply the red-plushed and strong. It is story behind them. But he went flanked by two smaller chairs abroad and no one ever learned in my shop. They are of a type "man of the chairs are for the "nouveau riche."

The chair to the left of the known.

The chair to the left of the mayor is surmounted with them. Wictoria are filled with them. Victoria are filled with them. The head of a wild boar over crossed spears. The head of a wild boar over the payor of a wild boar over them. Victoria are filled with them. They are god strong chairs, but arities they are not."

So there was no story. Except for what city clerk M. F. Hunter had to add—the price.

Council of that year paid $300 to the chairs. It is of carved oak, high-backed, a

Today there are only 120 patients at Tranquille and they will be gone within a year.

NEW METHODS

The reason is twofold: Tuberculosis can now be cured and methods of treatment have been radically changed.

The new era began in 1946 with the advent of streptomycin. Since that time development of new anti-biotics and advances in chest surgery have made more inroads on the dread disease. Fatalities are few.

Standing for re-election to the board, in the first open election held in the district, are John S Williams, board chairman, and Trustee Aubrey R. Hull. Making their initial bids for election to the two vacant seats are Howard Sewell, James C. Polson and Fred Boulter.

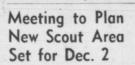

Mr. Williams charged that platforms of Mr. Polson and Mr. Sewell, urging that school board facilities become more available to the public than they are at present, came from "the same people who have laid a smokescreen around the opliams and Hull.

Fire Chief Rod Bayles of Langford said no candidate in the election was sponsored by

"SMALL POTATOES"

"Accusing volunteer firemen of this kind of activity is small potatoes," he said after the meeting. "If volunteer firemen want to take an interest in school affairs, that is up to them and them alone.'

Speaking on his own behalf, Mr. Boulter said he was standing for election because of his

TO LEMONADE WEATHER AID

Far from their native California, lemons grown by Harry Rawlings, 615 Linden, flourish in balmy climate, which Tuesday made Victoria the warmest city in Canada with a high of 52. Mr. Rawlings began growing lemons four years ago, with cuttings be brought from California. Last year one tree produced a single lemon, the other two. This year they are loaded with a total of 13. (Times Photo.)

MONTE ROBERTS

A dreadful thing has happened in a community in the State of New York, the name of which, fortunately, escapes

This dreadful occurrence has to do with barber shop quartet singing, which is in itself sometimes dreadful under the best of circumstances.

But under the circumstances I am about to relate, it has reached a peak of dreadfulness which staggers the

The nub of the matter is this: In the community under discussion, there has been organized a group of FEMALE barber shop quartets.

Let it be noted right here that these intrusive females do not even have the decency to call themselves beauty salon quartets, or even hair-dressing parlor quartets.

No. They call themselves BARBER SHOP quartets.

This is an unpridled invasion of the privacy of the

No. They call themselves BARBER SHOP quartets.

This is an unbridled invasion of the privacy of the barber shop and the sanctity of the tonsorial emporium.

I do not make these statements as an expert barber shop quartet member, although, in all modesty, I must say

I have done rather tremendous things with harmony.

At least, if the hour was late enough and the circumstances justified, I THOUGHT I was doing tremendous things with harmony.

I make these statements, however, as a man who has grown up in a world in which the dominance of the female has steadily increased to the point where there are few places in which the male can seek refuge.

One of these was in the linked arms of three other males, producing the noises traditionally associated with the barber shop quartet.

Females have no business to attempt barber shop quartet singing.

Females were never intended to sing IN barber shop Barber shop quartets were meant to sing ABOUT

A barber shop quartet is only too happy to eulogize the female named Adeline, or Rosy O'Grady, or K.K.Katie, or even the Mademoiselle from you know where.

Q. Are the Legislative Build ings' domes tarnished copper or have they been painted green?

A. Tarnished copper. They have never been painted.
Q. Do identical twins have the me fingerprints? M.F.

Q. Why are puncture wounds

A. Wounds such as those made by nails are serious be-cause they seldom bleed enough to wash out the gernus. Tetamus or lookdaw could occur. As an aid to prevent infection, it is well to press down on the wound to make it bleed.

Q. Is it right to call all insects bugs"? L.T.

A. The name "bug" is care-lessly applied to all insects, but it really belongs to certain kinds of insects that have piercing-sucking mouth parts.

Calorie-Streamlined Salad Goes to Christmas Party

Just another salad isn't good enough when you've a Christmas party in mind. But this one is quite a different matter. Jellied chicken buffet salad is a show-stealer for sure. It's done in two contrasting jellied layers—one of tangy vegetable juice cocktail, the other a spicy blend of chicken and chicken soup.

Unmolded and served on young, freshly chilled salad greens, this party salad is certain of winning compliments. What's more, it's low in cal.

WASHINGTON (UP)-It was a time of ordeal for motherlyooking Anne Wheaton.

The president was sick. Her boss, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, was in Paris. She alone as Associate Press secretary faced the world -as represented by clamoring crowds of reporters.

Monday night and Tuesday morning she issued brief announcements about the president's "chill."

By 10.30 a.m. Tuesday nearly 100 newsmen jammed the re-ception room outside the president's office. Hats and coats covered a table in the centre of the room. Mrs. Wheaton called

The nub of the matter is this:

In the community under discussion, there has been organized a group of FEMALE barber shop quartets.

Let it be noted right here that these intrusive females do not even have the decency to call themselves beauty salon quartets, or even hair-dressing parlor quartets. No: They call themselves BARBER SHOP quartets.

No. They call themselves BARBER SHOP quarters.

This is an unbridled invasion of the privacy of the barber shop and the sanctity of the tonsorial emporium.

I do not make these statements as an expert barber shop quartet member, although, in all modesty, I must say I have done rather tremendous things with harmony.

At least, if the hour was late enough and the circumstances justified, I THOUGHT I was doing tremendous things with harmony.

things with harmony

I make these statements, however, as a man who has grown up in a world in which the dominance of the female has steadily increased to the point where there are few

places in which the male can seek refuge.

One of these was in the linked arms of three other males, producing the noises traditionally associated with the barber shop quartet.

Females have no business to attempt barber shop quartet singing.
Females were never intended to sing IN barber shop

Barber shop quartets were meant to sing ABOUT A barber shop quartet is only too happy to eulogize the female named Adeline, or Rosy O'Grady, or K.K.K.Katie, or even the Mademoiselle from you know where.

But if you put those four females together and made a barber shop quartet of them, what would you have!

I can only hope the females of the New York State community will see the error of their ways, disband im-mediately, and go back to being the persons sung about. If not, I am going to form a male quartet which will do its singing while seated under the dryers in a beauty

Come to think of it, the resulting resonance might be even better than that provided by a shower.

President Talks With Top Aides

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower eased back into the duties of his office today, less than 48 hours after he suffered a blockage of a brain artery.

The 67-year-old President conferred for 15 minutes with Vice-President Richard Nixon and the chief presidential aide, Sherman Adams. They discussed official business, including the 1958-59 budget and next month's NATO meeting.

Eisenhower's doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder said the president slept well Tuesday night. He said Eisenhower took his usual shower and shave and had a normal breakfast today.

Better to Say No More

A joint federal provincial statement issued after the conference made no mention of a suggestion made by the Prime Minister at the opening that the ability on inclusion of tuberculosis and mental patients in the hospital plan, sought by several of the provinces but turned down by the Liberal government.

He said Tuesday the proposal was discussed at the meeting but that "I think under the circumstances it is better to say no more at this time."

Premier Frost of Ontario, who offered the conference recommendations that would sizeably jack up federal contributions, in tax-sharing, was asked by reporters after the parley whether the government showed indications of meeting his views.

"I wouldn't say that" he said.

"But it was a very excellent conference and there was a good attitude all around."

Willie Pastrano, one of the leading contenders for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight boxing crown, indicated Tuesday called up yeteran centers of flight with Willi Bestmanoff here tonight.

"This fighting every four weeks is just what I need," said Pastrano, who defeated Dick Richardson in London in his last bout Oct. 22. "I'm fighting better now than ever before."

Besmanoff, heavyweight from Munich, Germany, was undefeated in 11 fights in 1956 but lost four of six starts this year.
